Preparing to shoot Many photographers prefer to look at subjects in the natural world, rather than through the artificial world of a computer monitor. Yet, for many digital camera users, a natural-looking photograph is a few keystrokes away. Using Photoshop, you can create a slightly distorted background from a photograph that won't show through the lens. You can manipulate the foreground objects in front of the lens, and even change the color of existing objects. Setting the color temperature to the middle and pointing the camera toward a light source can produce a _blue tint_ — an effect that creates a cool atmosphere. Turn the filter up to the extreme position, and the color temperature rises, producing a warm effect. Light this area with a suitable flash. If you want to create a dark photo, choose a black background for the picture and place a white or off-white object or an object with a black background in the foreground of the image. To create a wintry scene, use a blue backlit white wall (think of it as being lit by the sun) as a background and a snow-covered foreground. An image of a moonlit lake with a snow-covered island in the foreground and a snow-covered sky in the background is a brilliant scene for spring. Emosi "Emosi" was the Maltese entry in the Eurovision Song Contest 1992, performed in Maltese by Marcella. The song was performed fourth on the night, following Slovenia's Fabijan Šovčiar performing "Srečni veseliki" and preceding Sweden's Lotta Engberg with "The Power of Love". At the close of voting, it had received 90 points, placing it 10th in a field of 23. The song is based on a chord sequence from the opening bars of the concert piece Nobilis Ex Desiderio by the Italian composer Antonio Vivaldi. It was succeeded as Maltese representative at the 1993 Contest by Alem with "Mama".

1. Field of the Invention

The present invention is related to an optical recording medium for use in a next generation optical information recording medium for high density recording and the like, and a reproduction method and a recording/reproduction method therefor. More specifically, the invention is related to an optical recording medium having an optical recording layer on a support, wherein the optical recording layer is composed of a phase-change material, a chromium oxide film, a metal film, an organic dye layer or a double dielectric layer, and a reproduction method and a recording/reproduction method therefor.

2. Discussion of the Related Art

Conventionally, a rewritable compact disc (CD-RW) is known as an optical recording medium where recording/reproduction are performed. In such an optical recording medium, a recording layer is composed of a phase-change material. An optical system of an optical recording medium using a phase-change material has a spot size of about 1 micrometer in diameter, and has the near field effect. The near field effect means that a power of the recording beam (infrared beam of 780 nm) is increased by several to several tens of times the diffraction limit of a beam as compared with the spot size of 1 micrometer. Therefore, recording on a CD-RW of a conventional optical information recording medium can be performed with a small energy. Therefore, even when a jitter, which is one of factors for determining a recording/reproducing property of an optical recording medium, is small, recording and reproduction can be stably performed.

Q: NumberFormatException when converting hex array to String I'm getting a NumberFormatException when trying to convert an array of hex values to a String. 0.27 0.29 0.35 0.4 0.44 I converted them to: String[0] = "0.27" String[1] = "0.29" String[2] = "0.35" String[3] = "0.4" String[4] = "0.44" I then converted each String to an Array of chars char hexChars[] = new char[hexArray[0].length()]; for (int i = 0; i
