Use Cases Marketing has a long-standing reputation as the hardest job in the IT world, and the shift to the digital world has not made that any less true. While many companies in industries like energy, healthcare, transportation and finance have adopted digital technologies to save time, improve productivity, and cost, companies in other industries have struggled to embrace the digital revolution. The same is true for marketing. Yet, companies in other industries are seeing a positive payoff in adopting a digital marketing approach, and marketing departments are embracing this approach as well. The effectiveness of digital marketing as a means to communicate with your customers is only rivaled by its ability to educate your customers, and not surprisingly, that translates into more leads and sales for your company. While digital marketing technology has been available for decades, the emergence of smart phones has resulted in an explosion in digital marketing usage. Advances in the mobile space have continued to transform how people access information and use it in their day-to-day lives, from working at their desktops to multi-tasking on the go to interacting with their phones in their pockets. According to data from Pew Research, smartphone ownership has nearly reached 90% in the United States, and more than 75% of U.S. adults now own a smartphone. The Pew Research Center released a report that discussed the types of marketing activities people perform on their phones, the impact of this usage on their mobile devices, and how marketers can incorporate this growth into their digital marketing strategies. The following highlights of the report are listed below. 1. Smartphone Advertising According to Pew Research, 72% of smartphone owners say they search the Web on their smartphones. As mentioned, smartphones have a number of unique features including touch screen interfaces, full browser compatibility, and faster speeds. The Pew Research study also found that two-thirds of mobile ads are viewed on the phone itself, versus desktop or laptop computers. As mobile and web technologies continue to evolve, and as more people begin to connect their smartphones and other mobile devices to their corporate desktops, the potential for smart phone advertising could increase. Smart phone advertising that is less intrusive and more relevant to users will become even more valuable as mobile usage continues to expand. 2. Smartphone Apps Smartphone apps are ubiquitous. More than three out of four smartphone owners use apps on their phones, and almost half of smartphone owners use apps "almost every day" to get things done. The average smartphone

Let's get to it.Q: Is there any built-in function to determine if a request is within a certain period of time? I have some code that determines whether or not I should give the user a message or not, based on some time-based restrictions. It has been suggested to me that I could do this by setting a boolean in a cookie. However, I am concerned that every time the user loads the page that there will be a new boolean set and that could skew the results. I need to keep track of the current cookie so that I can unset the cookie ca3bfb1094
