Is it the true version? Â· .Treatment of nocturnal enuresis with bedtime dopamine-agonist. The potential efficacy of bedtime treatment with the dopamine agonist pramipexole was assessed in 58 children with monosymptomatic nocturnal enuresis (MNE). The patients were divided into four groups in a cross-over study design. The first group (n = 18) received 0.5 mg of pramipexole before bedtime. The second group (n = 20) received 0.5 mg of pramipexole 3 h before bedtime. The third group (n = 11) received placebo three hours before bedtime; the fourth group (n = 9) remained untreated. If after 1 month there was a reduction in the number of wet nights per week of at least 50% in the group who had received pramipexole before bedtime, this treatment was continued. The patients were monitored for 6 months. Twenty-six percent of patients (n = 15) developed dry nights. There was no difference in success between the two groups with pramipexole given before bedtime or with placebo. The other two groups remained dry. Two patients (one on bedtime placebo, one on bedtime pramipexole) developed dry nights, but they were not given treatment beyond 1 month. The incidence of dry nights and improvement in the frequency of wet nights were not different between the four groups. The results showed that the dopamine agonist pramipexole has no advantage in the treatment of children with monosymptomatic nocturnal enuresis as compared with placebo.90 µM) was shown

This is a hand drawn animation. And it was animated in Premiere Pro CC. Once you've opened this in Premiere you can fiddle about with it. You have a few options. I've chosen these settings because they give a good variety in terms of quality. Basically what I did was make the grass 'drop' framerate for a more 'quirky' feel and I put the animation at 30fps for a smoother animation. You can change this to whatever fps you want. The reason I leave it at 30fps is because I am usually working with slower but cleaner content then the slowest fps work. It's a good idea to experiment with the settings and see what looks good to you. And there's no right or wrong. Just whatever you think looks good is ok. Here's how to get the ball rolling on your own project. Obviously, you'll need to go download the 2 audio files. Once that's done: Select your timeline. The main thing to set is your score. You want to have your MIDI Track selected. Play your Track. Hit Control, P, S. Click the marker on your timeline. Here is where you can start building your animation. Move your markers where you want and change your framerate. Experiment. Add any layers to your timeline You can add layers for any number of different things. Clips, layers, etc. You can add a keyframe on any layer. Like I did. If I wanted to change what was animated on my ball, I can change it. You don't have to add anything. That's the beauty of making a comp. You can just set and go. Check out this site here for an example here. Also, in this case it was easier to make one background and make it appear on a few frames. So, I duplicated a background and moved the points I wanted. But I'm sure there are other ways to do this. I just wanted to get something up and running. You can do what ever you want. And, then, after you've got a base to work with... you can then go into Premiere to start getting it looking right. Once you have your animation made you're going to have to export it. Here's a link to a site that shows how to do it here.
