The GTrends Made Easy is the first and only keyword research tool that has the capability to automatically generate keywords from the fields in which the keyword was selected. It is the only tool that can use words that are the name of a file type in a word processing program. For example, if the file name is "you tube video" and the file extension is .flv then when you select the keyword "you tube video" GTrends Made Easy will use the term "you tube video" as the keyword. GTrends Made Easy will also replace the numbers at the end of the terms such as "on line " and "online" with the number that your

Instead it uses the actual words that were used to create the search term in the first place. When you enter the word in GTrends Made Easy, the tool uses the existing keyword that was selected in the GTrends Made Easy program and replaces it with the new word. The only words that it does not replace are words that are misspelled or contain special characters.
